Benefits of the Activity:

By engaging the participant in conversation whenever possible: including dinners together at a restaurant instead of in front of the television, we can better focus on conversation, whilst modeling:

1. Be aware of the personal space of others and learn not to invade it.
2. Practice making and maintaining eye contact during conversations.
3. Pay attention during conversations; don't let your mind wander or daydream.
4. Learn how (and when) to begin and end a conversation politely.
5. Try not to monopolise the discussion, dialogue is two-sided, so, allow the other person to speak their mind (or minds).
6. Engage in self-monitoring—that is, adapt your behaviour to reflect the social situation at hand, when you are with friends, feel free to let loose and act more relaxed and playful, at school, be attentive and responsive.
7. Think twice before speaking to avoid inappropriate comments.
8. Patience is a virtue, allow others to finish speaking before you begin to talk, you wouldn't want someone to interrupt your train of thought, would you?
9. Always be courteous—say please and thank you.
10. Listen to participants with the “third ear,” i.e., active listening, not only to the words they say, but the feelings they are expressing.

Initiate and practice pro-social skills while out socially, including:

1. How to initiate, maintain, and end a conversation.
2. The, art of negotiation—how to get what you want appropriately.
3. How to be appropriately assertive without being overly aggressive.
4. How to give and receive compliments.
5. How to respond to teasing by peers.
6. Practice how to accept constructive criticism.

Learning to successfully interact with others is one of the most important aspects of a participant's development, with far-reaching implications. Although most participants acquire social skills by example, and possibly osmosis, research clearly suggests participants with learning disabilities (LD) may have difficulty making and keeping friends. Adolescents with learning difficulties, have also been shown to interact less with their peers and to spend more leisure time alone, addicted to TV, computer games and the Internet. Outings to Beechworth are both social and historical with markets, goal and many activities, shops to view – an awesome day out.
